BURIAL OF A MIDGET .- The funeral services over Princess Paulina, the seventeen-ich midget, who died a few days ago from pneumonia, were held Tuesday morning at the Church of St. Vincent de Paul, in New York. Requiem mass was read by the Rev.

Father Smith. There was a large num-ber of curious strangers present, and a sprinkling of museum and theatrical friends. She had not been in this country long.

The casket was of cedar, covered The casket was of cedar, covered with "baby blue" silk plush, lined with blue satin. The plate was inscribed: "Princess Paulina," and beneath the inscription is engraved a crown. A small silver plate bears a French inscription, the translation of which is "Mlle. the translation of which is Paulina Musters. Born in Ossendrecht, Holland, February 26, 1877. Died February 15, 1895."

The casket stood on a marble trestle in the aisle of the church near the door.

After the services the casket was included in an onen box, which was here After the services the casket was in-closed in an open box, which was her-metically sealed in an outer pine box. It will be shipped to-day in the Red Star steamer Westernland, to Ossen-drecht, where the body will receive final interment. final interment.

The midget was laid out in a blue satin reception dress, that she had worn on the stage.

After the service the casket was opened and placed near the door, where the congregation could look on the body of the Princess on the way out. Besides the blue satin reception dress, the dead midget wore a tinsel crown, studded with large paste jewels, and loose handfuls of Annunciation lilies, hyacinths and carnations were strewn over the body and heaped at the foot of the little

Our system affords an opportunity to bor

Our system affords an opportunity to bor row on either personal or real estate security. The plan is superior to Building and Loan Associations. The amount borrowed may be returned in monthly payments without bonus, with interest at 5 per cent. per annum; it affords absolute security to investors, with a reasonable guarantee of an annual dividend of from 8 to 10 per cent.

We desire to secure the services of energetic, representative men in every community to act as Local Secretaries. The position will be sufficiently remunerative to amply compensate for services. If you possess the above qualifications, write for particulars. Full information regarding our system of making loans as well as investments and agencies will be furnished by addressing S S. ROBEETSON, President, 1122 Walnut street, Philadelphia.
